Welcome, Stranger

As winter gains its frosty hold, families welcome their neighbors and returning family. Come learn about traditions and cultures of far-off places as they are applied here on the coast of New Hampshire.

Follow the Story

Goodwin House – 1870 Family Gathering

Mrs. Goodwin welcomes her cousin Miss Phebe who lives in the Portsmouth Almshouse. While they visit in the parlor, the Goodwin grandchildren assemble a package of special items for Miss Phebe to take home.

Rider-Wood House – 1826 Newest Family Member

The Rider-Wood family is celebrating the baptism of their new nephew. They are eager to meet this “little stranger.”

Aldrich Memorial – 1908 A New Museum

The Thomas Bailey Aldrich Memorial has just finished its first season, and Mrs. Aldrich has opened the museum to patrons for a Christmastime visit.

Shapiro House – 1919 Old World Traditions

On the seventh night of Hanukkah the Shapiro family celebrates by eating traditional foods and playing special Hanukkah games. They learn from their neighbors some other “Old World” traditions.

Abbott House & Store – 1943 New Neighbors

Mrs. Abbott’s kitchen is full of the neighborhood children, some of whom have just moved here. Learn about Puddle Dock during war-time along with the new residents.

Wheelwright House – 1783 Exciting Voyages

Young Jack Wheelwright has returned from his first voyage as a cabin boy. He is telling of the places he traveled and is sharing stories of Barbary pirates.

Shapley-Drisco House -

1795 – Building a Family

Sally Shapley is getting used to her new role after her marriage to William Rugg. She and her family are putting the finishing touches on bed linens for the couple’s new home while discussing “going to housekeeping”.

1955 – From Afar

The Day family is anticipating the return of their future son-in-law, Paul, from his deployment to Korea. Eleanor Day is preparing his favorite foods in the kitchen while the children make decorations for his homecoming party.
